

Keith Wobeser PT, OCS, COMT

Keith is a Certified Orthopaedic Manual Therapist and Board Certified Orthopaedic Clinical Specialist. Keith received his B.S. in Physical Therapy ('93) and his B.S. in Biology ('91) from the University of Saskatchewan in Canada. At the MAPS Symposium in 2011 Keith led a breakout session on the Maitland Approach to Common Running Injuries and in 2016 presented Sacroiliac Joint Dysfunction at the MAPS symposium. He has been an instructor since 2006. Mr. Wobeser works as a physical therapist for a private outpatient clinic in the Philadelphia suburbs and is an active competitor and coach in rowing. With two decades of clinical experience Keith is well educated in the day to day needs of his patients and is very familiar with a multitude of manual therapy methods to find the most effective treatment.
